Town Council Has Quiet Session Monday

No New Business Undertaken At Meeting

A quiet session of the town council was held in regular session last Monday evening. The action of the committee appointed to make a deal with Mr. Garner for the sale of a house in Lockwood in exchange for road work done on town streets was approved by council on motion of Councillors Lavelle and Shaw.

The price of the house on Fourth street, about which enquiries were made, was set at $75.00, on motion of councillors Shaw and Newnam.

A letter was read from the Utilities Commission urging the council to put forth special effort to collect back taxes, rents and water rates.

On motion of councillor Shaw and Newnam the bonds for the newly appointed Secretary-Treasurer were ordered to be duly completed.

The usual monthly accounts were approved for payment.

Newfoundland To Be Crown Colony

Virtually Assured By Present Government

Newfoundland's return to her old status as a crown colony became virtually assured today as the government told the legislature of its plans for "giving immediate effect" to the recommendations of the Royal Commission that investigated the island dominion's financial and economic position.

Sweeping changes in the country's government structure held out the possibility of free dom from unprecedented difficulties, the speech from the throne said the Prime Minister F. C. Aldrich is announcing the government's stand, declared the suspension of the island's constitution and the substitution of government by commission to be "in the best interests of the country."

Mr. Ed. Cooke left Sunday for Drumheller where he has bought out a grocery business and expects to be ready for customers by the first of the month.

St. Ambrose Church to Celebrate Anniversary

Hoped to Have Rev. H. C. B. Gibson Here For Occasion

The services will be: 9 a.m. Holy Communion; 11 a.m. Choral Eucharist; 7:30 p.m. Evensong. It is hoped that the Rev. H. C. B. Special music will be rendered by the choir and everything is being done to make the occasion a memorable one.

On Sunday, December 10th the Right Reverend, the Lord Bishop of Qu'Appelle, D. D. will administer the Sacrament of Confirmation in St. Ambrose Church at Evensong at 7:30 p.m. The Bishop will be in St. Barnabas Church in Medicine Hat on the morning of Dec. 10th, and arrangements are being made to transport as many of the parishioners of St. Ambrose Church to St. Barnabas as wish to attend that service. EDITORIAL A CONTRAST

During the hard times it is quite common for governments to meet with defeat when an appeal is made to the electors. A few provincial governments have met this fate during the past few months and a similar fate is predicted for several more as soon as they appeal to the country. A very noticeable contrast to this apparently natural custom is the result in several municipal elections recently in which mayors appealing to the ratepayers in some of our larger western cities, have been re-elected with greatly increased majorities against all kinds of opposition. This has been the case in Edmonton, Calgary and Winnipeg during the past few weeks.

This prompts one to pause and wonder what is the reason for this changed attitude on the part of the voters. Can it be that our municipalities are being more economically and satisfactorily run than our legislatures?

It is a certainty that the average voter can keep a closer tab on their mayor and council than on their legislators. It is just as certain that the actions of the local council have a more direct drag on the purse strings of the taxpayer than have the actions of the legislatures. This being the case one would naturally suppose that the municipal officials would have the hardest time getting re-elected during times of depression. Apparently this is not the case and apparently they are carrying on satisfactorily.

It might not be a bad idea to start promoting some of our municipal officials.

There is quite an agitation on now for safer motor highways in Alberta. This has been accentuated because of serious bus accidents recently. There is no doubt great room for improvement in the regulations for certain types of big, tragic, saving dead cars on the highways, lights, and so on, but we sometimes feel that if there were fewer regulations regarding rights-of-way etc. and more of each driver having to look out for himself, there would be fewer of those careless, foolhardy accidents. How often a driver goes on hell-bent for election on a busy thoroughfare, simply because he has the right of way only to run into someone at the next intersection. It isn't more regulations we need, it's more sane drivers.

Several towns through out the province are having "Buy Alberta Made Goods" week. It's a good idea. The nearer home you spend your money the better your chances for getting the money thus spent back home again.

Local Council of Women in Medicine Hat have decided to enter lady candidates in the field for both council and school board at a meeting held last Tuesday. Mrs. J. O. Williams was selected to run for the council and Mrs. C. Richardson for the school board.

The local Little Theatre Association will meet tonight in the Parish Hall.

"Tugboat Annie" Coming To Monarch

Reunites Marie Dressler & Wallace Beery on Monarch Screen
December 7, 8, 9

Thrills, laughs and heart-throbs all mingle in the reunion of Marie Dressler and Wallace Beery, beloved team of "Min and Bill," who are again co-starring at the Monarch theatre in "Tugboat Annie," culmination of the famous Saturday Evening Post stories of a latching feminine tugboat captain and her sanguinary adventures.

Mrs. Dressler plays Annie, with Beery cast as her shiftless but good-natured mate, Captain Terry. They battle and make up again for countless laughs; there is a dramatic note of the former love and a gigantic thrill in the climax when Beery enters a blazing firebox to repair a boiler at sea and thus save a storm-tossed liner.

Episodes in several of the Post stories are used. Annie and Terry raise their boy to be a sea captain; he seeks to remove them from the squalid tug that is their home. Terry lapses into his old drinking habits and is drowned by his son, but comes through in the slinging sacrifice at the finish.

Robert Young, who scored in "Hell Below," is seen as the young captain. Maureen Sullivan has the romantic feminine lead, and the cast also includes Willard Robertson, Tammany Young, Frankie Darow, Jack Pennick and Paul Hurst.

Liberals Make Four More Gains in B.C.

C. C. F. Will Likely Be The Official Opponent

The deferred elections in six British Columbia constituencies Tuesday resulted very much according to general expectation. Four of the seats went to Liberals, one to a C. C. F. candidate and one to an independent. The standard of the house now is Liberals 34; C. C. F.; Independents 2; Non-Partisans 2; Unionist 1 and Labor 1. With their seven members the C. C. F. will now likely be looked upon as the official opposition as all other opposition members number only six. There is not a member labelled Conservative in the house.

Alberta is certainly making good clean-up in all lines of exhibits at the Winter Fair in Toronto. Nearly 200 prizes have come to this province.

Local S.O.E. Lodge Has Successful Social

Proceeds to Swell Funds for Annual Xmas Tree

As a means of swelling the funds for their annual Christmas tree entertainment the local Sons of England put on a social event in Cliff Hall last Tuesday evening.

The program opened with a bridge and whist drive. This was exceptionally well patronized and great interest was shown in the contest. For bridge the winners were: Sid Patterson first and G. Garner second, while the consolation went to Miss Sellhorn. In whist Miss Joan Wilson got first prize, Mrs. Riesen second and Reuben Schmidt this consolation.

After the distribution of the prizes the decks were cleared for what developed into one of the most enjoyable dances of the season.

There was a splendid attendance, the music was good and the crowd was in the right mood to enjoy the evening to the fullest extent, and to prepare them to enjoy the excellent lunch served at midnight.

Quite a number of Redcliff Little Theatre members attended the Little Theatre performance in Medicine Hat last night and enjoyed the three one-act plays.

Redcliff Reminiscences

Taken From Our File of December 4th-1914

Tom Clark, who has been visiting in the States, returned to town this week.

Because he considered the singing of "Tipperary" a violation of neutrality, Commander Evans of the U.S. navy has forbidden the singing of it.

Not to be outdone by their older sisters, the young girls in town have also formed a girls' club. At the organization meeting held at Miss Edith Broadbent's home last Wednesday, it was decided to call the club "Sana Pacon". Their motto is "Dim Vivimus Vivamus", which is being interpreted "While we live, let us live." The club meets every Wednesday.

The new Anglican church was consecrated by the Lord Bishop of Qu'Appelle last Thursday.

The School Board has made arrangements for carrying on night classes in the school. Mr. F. Hurd will take charge of the class in Drafting. Mr. Robert Hamilton the mining class. Mr. Reem shorthand and stenography, and Mrs. C. Gibson and Mrs. G. Gibson fancy and plain sewing respectively.

Looking For Investments

Depositors in England Want To Put Money To Work

Millions upon millions of pounds are lying idle in Great Britain waiting for a chance of investment. In the nine clearing banks of the country there are deposits of £1,916,000,000. And in the Bank of England the different banks have deposits of more than £100,000,000, which is some 150,000,000 more than a year ago.

Banks are wondering what in the world to do with all the money. The people have not been investing lately, but now they are getting restless and watching for favorable opportunities to put their cash into projects of a sound nature. The ceiling with which the recent Canadian loan was snappily up in an instance of how quick the investors are to put their money at work.

How to get all these millions of pounds into active circulation is a problem that is confronting the country. With business reported to be picking up in England, it is believed that investment opportunities will be found soon. Many businesses have been going along, planning to expand some day, but others have been waiting. Many of them are already ready to spend. There is plenty of money in Britain. All that is required is the means of getting it moving around more quickly.—Herald Cities Star.

Tribute From Royal Scot

Engineer Placed Wreath On C.P.R. War Memorial in Montreal

Completing the international tour of the "Royal Scot," crack flyer of the London, Midland and Scottish Railway, Driver William Gilbertson, in a splendid tribute to the employees of the Canadian Pacific Railway who gave their lives for king and country in the Great War, stepped from the footplates of his engine at Montreal and immediately placed a wreath of red roses on the Canadian Pacific war memorial in Windsor Station.

He was accompanied in the tribute from the British railway employees by Fireman John Jackson and Tom Blackett and by Mechanic C. Woods. The wreath was inscribed "In glorious memory of the splendid service and great sacrifice of the employees of the Canadian Pacific who laid down their lives for king and country in the Great War. This wreath gratefully and solemnly offered by the employees of the London, Midland and Scottish Railway—Armistice Day, November 11, 1923.

Mounted Police Believe They Have Found Remains of Missing Trapper

Royal Canadian Mounted Police believe they have identified a human skull found on the coast of the Slave Lake, that of Chester W. Graham, 23, trapper and native of Cadillac, Mich. Graham was of Canadian parentage.

About two years ago, the youthful trapper, who had spent several seasons in the Great West, and who had some dental work performed in Edmonton. The skull is now in 254 motion in the hope that some dentist may recognize the dental work.

In the meantime, a patrol is combing the northern coast line of Great Slave Lake for signs of Graham's canoe. Police state that the trapper was an expert canoeist and they hold to the theory that his canoe was swamped. Part of the sail of the canoe has already been found, the R.C.M.P. revealed, and has been identified as belonging to Graham.

New Cycle Of Sun Spots

The beginning of a new cycle of spots of the sun is now being observed by the astronomers of the Carnegie Institution's Mount Wilson Observatory in California. It promises increased magnetic disturbance on the earth, with occasional disruption of telegraph and telephone service. The sun's borealis will be visible farther south. More ultra-violet radiation for sun bathers. Probable cool weather, taking it the year round. Possibly power wireless reception.

Crew Will Miss Mascot

Admiral Byrd's Famous Dog Died Before Expedition Sailed

Admiral Richard E. Byrd, with a crew of 70 men, improved scientific equipment and a large store of supplies set sail from London for the unexplored and unknown wastes of the expansive Antarctic, on his second expedition.

There was one thing missing—Admiral Byrd's dog, Igloo, one of the famous dogs of America. Igloo died some months ago and the expedition has departed without benefit of a mascot.

"I have not replaced Igloo," Admiral Byrd and party to sailing. "It can't be done, as we are taking this trip without any such good omen. Igloo was that, you know. There was never any doubt about it. At least I always thought so. My men did, too."

"I don't mean that we won't do as well without that good luck sign, but we'll miss Igloo, at least the 20 of us who went on our last expedition. There isn't much to do with tide lines in the cold Antarctic, you know and Igloo was a sort of companion who went up with us with civilization somehow."

"There isn't much to do there, outside of working hours. We play poker and bridge. Our bridge game lasted six months. We played poker for three. And we read. Igloo was for us to lend touch to the setting and we'll miss him."

Once Social Events

The Belleville Ontario-Intelligence says it would seem that banquets have gone a long way from the ancient form when the popular speaker did not use up so much of the time. Banquets were once real social events, with the play of wit and flash of wit. But now it is all talk and no action on a banquet can be any imaginative stretch be placed in that class, where the great majority of the audience have to listen to a series of rather uninteresting addresses.

Was Out Anyway

In a village cricket match the local butcher was batting, when a ball hit him on the head. The wicket-keeper caught the ball.

"How's that?" he yelled.
"Out!" said the umpire.
"But I hit me on the head!" protested the batsman.
"I don't know where it hit you!" retorted the batsman.
"I see you—out!" said the umpire.

Britain Boys Art Treasure

Ivory Holy Water Bucket Was Russian Relic

A Russian art treasure 1,000 years old has just been purchased for the nation by the National Art Collection Fund. It consists of a beautiful little ivory altar, or holy water bucket, of the 10th century. It measures only six inches high and four and a half inches in diameter, is beautifully carved with scenes from the Passion of Christ, and bears an inscription with the name of the Emperor Otto. In whose honor the statue was made. The price paid to the Dutch dealer, who recently bought it out of the Hermitage collection, was £7,000.

The statue is regarded by the museum authorities as one of their sacred possessions. Holy water buckets in ivory are greatly prized, as only four or five of them are known to have survived. There is one in Milan cathedral, but nothing like that now acquired is to be found in any museum. It is known as the Desdemona Statue and had been in several private collections before Count Alexander III acquired it in 1885.

The 11 scenes carved with great delicacy all round this ceremonial relic include "Christ washing the Disciples Feet," "The Betrayal," "Judas accepting the 30 pieces of silver," and "The Crucifixion."

People Crowded Horticultural Show To See Green Room

"The American Museum of Natural History, in New York, enjoyed a record attendance when 39,000 men, women and children wanted to see the 'green room.' But there wasn't any green room. Curiously, answering several hundred times the same question: 'Where is the green room?' were all at first amazed, then annoyed. Somebody, they decided, had been seeing things, and, meanwhile, the queues of rose lovers lengthened to two blocks. It developed that an official, discussing an exhibit of the Horticultural Society, had remarked facetiously that they would have everything, including green rooms. Most Suitable Way

The common-sense view is that it is better to let radicals take their hands off their bottles than give it to better to let them show what they please in a public place, where any excess can be controlled, than to force them to gather in secret meeting places. When the radical is permitted to let off steam he is not likely to explode.

Constructed Without Rivets

On Tanker Built In England Was Electrically Welded

The new oil tanker, "Peter G. Campbell," now plying the Great Lakes for the Steel Oil Company is an interesting example of a new development in shipbuilding, in that it has no rivets but has been entirely electrically welded. The vessel was constructed on the Tyne, where so many famous British ships have been built. It is 370 feet long, and on its first trip from Montreal to the Ottawa River, carried 315,000 gallons of gasoline. The "Peter G. Campbell" is expected by the builders to vindicate a theory of construction that may go far towards silencing general shipbuilding methods. In ordinary steel ship construction, the plates are overlapped and securely riveted, but in the case of the "Peter G. Campbell," excess weight of over-lapping steel and rivets has been abolished by butting the steel plates and then welding them in such a way as to make the ship a single unit of steel.

A great deal of weight is therefore saved, making for greater capacity and ability to enter shallower waters and harbors. The "Peter G. Campbell" is expected to be 100 feet—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

Hitler Was No Hero

Displayed Skill In Avoiding Dangerous Places During War

Francis Xavier Huber, a war veteran who was shot a leg before Verdun in 1917, told me stories of a curious fact about his heroism in his regimental file. The thing that had struck him about Private Hitler was his good nature. He was neither popular nor feared. He was just a quiet fellow, they just smiled at him and his vague rambling speeches on everything in the world and out of it. He acquired very little reputation of being what in the British army is called an "old soldier." He interested himself particularly in the important question of how the officers' washing was done or doing it himself. This secured for him the good graces of the colonel who removed him from the more constant dangers of the trenches and appointed him runner. Though he got the Iron Cross of the second class, he was in the regiment ever looked upon Hitler as any sort of a hero; indeed, they rather admired him for the skill with which he avoided his comrades. The Rights Of Women

Britain Following Canada's Lead In Respect To Changing Nationality Through Marriage

Britain is following Canada's lead in legislation for the women without a country. Under the present British law when for the women without a country, she takes his nationality. But in the case of some countries, the British women particularly, the new nationality may not be acquired by marriage and a woman having lost her British nationality by marriage to the citizen of these countries is thus left without a country.

Sir John Gilmour, the Home Secretary, moved second reading of a government bill in the House of Commons, the measure permitting British women to retain their British nationality in such cases. Canada has already passed similar legislation. Sir John admitted the bill was of limited scope but he indicated the difficulty of securing agreement between all parts of the Empire on common action of any more radical nature. Canada, however, had already acted in anticipation of other members of the Empire to retain their British nationality.

The bill immediately came under fire from the Labor benches. Clement Attlee, former Postmaster-General, moved amendment to the bill so that it failed to give full effect to the policy of the British government at the 1921 League of Nations conference of nationality of all disabilities of married women. It was a very small measure, he said, it would remove some anomalies but it would not do much more.

A British woman marrying a United States citizen, for instance, would lose her British nationality. A Frenchman, who became French, "There is no reason," the Labor member urged, "why the women of this country should be prejudiced because of the backward state of public opinion in some of the dominions."

"We should not sacrifice reality for full uniformity."

Mons celebrated the anniversary of the liberation from the enemy by the heroic soldiers whom General Sir Arthur Currie led to victory, and this occasion was commemorated in a message received at Sir Arthur Currie's office, signed by the Burgomaster and Secretary of the Belgian city. Most Suitable Way

The common-sense view is that it is better to let radicals take their hands off their bottles than give it to better to let them show what they please in a public place, where any excess can be controlled, than to force them to gather in secret meeting places. When the radical is permitted to let off steam he is not likely to explode.

People Crowded Horticultural Show To See Green Room

"The American Museum of Natural History, in New York, enjoyed a record attendance when 39,000 men, women and children wanted to see the 'green room.' But there wasn't any green room. Curiously, answering several hundred times the same question: 'Where is the green room?' were all at first amazed, then annoyed. Somebody, they decided, had been seeing things, and, meanwhile, the queues of rose lovers lengthened to two blocks. It developed that an official, discussing an exhibit of the Horticultural Society, had remarked facetiously that they would have everything, including green rooms. Those who chronicled the interview, took him seriously."

Gypsy Children In Hungary Are Taught Cleanliness

Use of soap and water is one of the things taught at the only school for gypsy children in Hungary. At the institution, in Dios Gyor, inspection is held every morning, and those who are not up to the standard of cleanliness are forcibly given a soap and water treatment. How to talk without swearing is also taught. In addition to writing and arithmetic are in the curriculum. The school has been opened because parents objected to their children attending school with dirty, swarming gypsies.

Many Gifts From Admirers

The Rights Of Women

Britain Following Canada's Lead In Respect To Changing Nationality Through Marriage

Britain is following Canada's lead in legislation for the women without a country. Under the present British law when for the women without a country, she takes his nationality. But in the case of some countries, the British women particularly, the new nationality may not be acquired by marriage and a woman having lost her British nationality by marriage to the citizen of these countries is thus left without a country.

Sir John Gilmour, the Home Secretary, moved second reading of a government bill in the House of Commons, the measure permitting British women to retain their British nationality in such cases. Canada has already passed similar legislation. Sir John admitted the bill was of limited scope but he indicated the difficulty of securing agreement between all parts of the Empire on common action of any more radical nature. Canada, however, had already acted in anticipation of other members of the Empire to retain their British nationality.

The bill immediately came under fire from the Labor benches. Clement Attlee, former Postmaster-General, moved amendment to the bill so that it failed to give full effect to the policy of the British government at the 1921 League of Nations conference of nationality of all disabilities of married women. It was a very small measure, he said, it would remove some anomalies but it would not do much more.

A British woman marrying a United States citizen, for instance, would lose her British nationality. A Frenchman, who became French, "There is no reason," the Labor member urged, "why the women of this country should be prejudiced because of the backward state of public opinion in some of the dominions."

"We should not sacrifice reality for full uniformity."

Sends Message Of Gratitude For Liberation To General Currie

Fifteen years ago November 11, the Canadian Corps, led by the Earl Bessborough, Black Watch of Canada, entered Mons, which had been evacuated more than four years before by the famous Black Watch of Scotland, rearguard of the heroic British Army. Mons celebrated the anniversary of the liberation from the enemy by the heroic soldiers whom General Sir Arthur Currie led to victory, and this occasion was commemorated in a message received at Sir Arthur Currie's office, signed by the Burgomaster and Secretary of the Belgian city. The text of the message was as follows:

Moving Navigator's Cottage To Australia

Victorian Government Buys Yorkshire Home of Captain

James Cook, the famous 18th century navigator who planted the British flag in Australia and New Zealand, is to be commemorated in Australia by the translation to Melbourne of the actual Yorkshire cottage built by his parents.

It is a small 18th century two-story cottage of mellowed red brick, built at Great Ayton, Yorkshire, by the father of Capt. James Cook, the discoverer of Australia, and it is shortly to be dismantled and taken to Melbourne, where it will be re-erected.

It is expected that all time the relations between the commonwealth and the mother country.

Bought by the Victorian Government for $4,000, it has been surveyed and charted, numbered brick by brick and beam by beam, so that it can be put up in its original state, probably in a new park, for Victoria's large scale centenary celebration in the autumn of 1934.

Disassembly of the fabric under skilled supervision begins in a few weeks' time, when the parts will be packed and shipped to Australia. The ivory covered the cottage has already been taken down and stored at a Danby nursery. It is to be re-planted when the building is re-erected in Australia.

Red brick and stone flooring, as well as the old fireplace and door-latches which had been removed for the convenience of modern tenants of the cottage and safely kept by the owners, will be replaced in their right positions.

Capt. James Cook, English naval captain and explorer, was born in 1728 and died in 1779.

Operator Who Dispatched Armistice Telegram Retires After Long Service

A man who sent a telegram which made the world rejoice—the telegram that ended the Great War—retired the other day after 40 years' service as a telegraphist at the Brighton post office.

He is Frank Hilder, Pennington, aged 60, of Addison Road, Hove, England.

During the war he was telegraphist to Lord Haig at Advanced General Headquarters, and he sent out the historic telegram on November 11, 1918.

"Hostilities will cease at 11 hours today, November 11. Troops will stand fast on the line reached at that hour, which will be recorded by wire to Advanced General Headquarters. Defensive precautions will be maintained. There will be no intercourse of any sort with the enemy until receipt of instructions from G.H.Q." Further instructions follow. Addressed to all concerned from Chief Advanced G.H.Q.

Mr. Pennington was on duty at Montreal at the time.
